SUMMARY
Medically-qualified Clinical and Research Microbiologist. Licensed for practicing Medicine and Clinical Microbiology in the EU and Switzerland. Experience in culture-based and molecular microbiology achieved in tertiary/quaternary care Academic Medical Centers. Contributed consistently to the mission of his Departments via active participation in research and teaching programs, training of residents and medical students, mentoring of trainees, continuing medical education programs, infection control, design of tenders for diagnostic systems. In addition to clinical work, developed a variety of basic and translational research programs, lead Ph.D. programs in Medicine, acted as mentor to graduate students. Within his Medical Center, he is collaborating with the Division of Infectious Diseases, ICUs, Internal Medicine, Surgical, Neurologic, and Pediatric Wards. Diagnostic expertise, administrative leadership, and interpersonal skills resulted in scholarly achievements. Leads a team of 20 FTEs for diagnosis, research, teaching, and is responsible of financial, quality, and strategic management. Expertise in automated microbiology (BD and Kiestra systems). He is serving as Director of the Ph.D. program in "Experimental and Translational Medicine". His lab produces accredited tests in bacteriology, virology, infectious serology, mycology, parasitology for a population of approx. half a million people. Lab services have been increasing 5-10% per year. Reduced hospital infections due to implementation of rapid diagnostics and information technology, thus improving communication with clinical wards and reducing hospital stay. In 2015, the laboratory has been renewed with state-of-the art technology and enhanced biosafety levels. Current research: disorders with possible viral etiology (type 1 diabetes, post-polio syndrome); molecular microbiology. Coordination of international research groups in collaboration with the American Society for Microbiology, the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation, the European Polio Union, The University of Tokyo.
